Paint vividly within your mind,
Such precious gems in time,
Look close upon your classroom dears,
And therein all you find.

Be mindful of each happy face,
See your friends in all their youth,
Remember shrill the laughter,
The playground and the books.

Remember passing seasons,
Of how they come and go,
You're the bright new light of springtime,
This world, yours to behold.

Delight in darling friendships,
And always hold them true,
You'll have peace within a joyous heart,
And your companions will have too.

Hello from us, the former child,
Already passed these doors,
How we have loved this precious school,
The many times before.

Mr Cole took us fishing,
For wee mini-beasts and flies,
And together sang Amazing Grace,
Lined up distinctly blue and yellow,
Those boxed assembly tiles.

P.S. Love Artigarvan,
Her brown bricks, windows and doors,
She gifts sound education,
For you, for all, the many times before.

May her classrooms hold much enquiry,
All the seasons yet to come,
For she imparts the gentle learning,
And blends it all with fun!
